THE LIGHT EDIT

VOL 27. ISSUE 02

a·emotional light

From Cold Steel to Warm Light

Every a·emotional light piece starts as a sheet of steel mesh, in the Galician workshop founded by Arturo Álvarez in 1994. Hands fold it, bend it and shape it until the metal holds a soft glow. No two pieces are made the same way twice. Each piece is numbered, so its origin can always be traced back to the workshop.

Designed and made in Galicia, Spain, the luminaires play with light, shadow and atmosphere, drawing from nature and architecture. Exclusively available in India through IDS.

A NEW COLLECTION

Núa

Núa begins with an idea of nakedness understood as a direct relationship between matter and light. Its ribbed surface turns the material into a luminous skin, changing the way it feels from every angle.

FLUO

Light Behind a Veil

Veils of steel mesh gather around one point of light, like tulle that reveals and conceals at once.

CORAL

The Reef, Indoors

Organic forms drawn from the reef, worked in painted mesh. Hung together, they turn a ceiling into a landscape.

NEVO

A Slow Curve of Light

Each Nevo is shaped by hand, so no two curves repeat. The folds catch the light and let it spread, and the volume seems to move with it.
